Dear Pierre Louis Colin

The Peugeot 807 is the best car I've owned. It's easy to drive, quiet, and excellent value.

Your slogan is The drive of your life – or the drive of my wife as I like to say to Mrs Shullot every time we get in the car. She smiled the first time I said it. The car is actually in her maiden name – it's easier with the insurance and the points on the driving licence. But I'll be dead before she gets the keys to it.

I'm a patriot. We've got an island mentality, warm beer, chicken tikka masala and the Olympics (no offence, Pierre) – albeit with a logo that looks like a swastika and a budget that's going to cost us an arm and a leg (I don't know how that translates into French). But the country's going to the dogs. Now I'm not like some who are against immigrants – many of them work in my industrial units on or near the minimum wage – or celebrities who feel obliged to expose their bodies. No, what gets me is the green lobby forcing their twisted propaganda down our throats. A casual look at the facts will show that climate change is a fabrication. Sometimes it's hot, sometimes it's cold – that's what the weather does. If anyone or anything is to blame then it's the sun.

The greens want to take all the pleasure out of driving. Don't we have enough barriers already? Road humps, the congestion charge, learners, Nissan cars, women drivers, cyclists, pedestrians, traffic wardens, speed cameras, the police, seat belts, white vans, anti drinking campaigns (what's wrong with one for the road?), Mazda cars, the mobile phone ban. If the greens have their way there will be no point in continuing to own and buy a car.

Please assure me that you will still produce cars that I will want to drive.

Anyway, good luck to you and your fine company.

Yours sincerely

Peter Shullot
