

483 Green Lanes
London
N13 4BS

6 July 2007

Christine Ourmieres
General Manager
Air France UK & Ireland
Plesman House
Cains Lane
Bedfont
TW14 9RL

Dear Christine Ourmieres

As a regular flier on your planes I know it is fully deserved due to the excellent service you provide. Your stewards and stewardesses meet my every need. Mrs Shullot agrees, even when she is back in economy class. You know how to deal with difficult passengers – I've been through your security checks. And you've escaped the fate of the ailing Al Italia – always late in take-off always late in arrival.

I am angry that the so-called environmentalists are pushing the world into oblivion with their scare about climate change. They do not recognise the good that aviation does for business, leisure and families which makes the global village a reality. And long distance flights have no alternative transport. So what do the greens want us to do instead? Row the Atlantic? That's only for the nutters who do it in bath tubs.

After all, Louise Bleriot didn't fly across the Channel only to be slapped with the Airline Passenger Duty upon landing.

Your man Sarkozy with his Prime Minister Jean-Marie Le Pen has no truck for these time wasters. Crack down hard on immigrants, strikers, long lunches and gays. Sarkozy must have the Little Blue Book by Margaret Thatcher on his bedside table. I hope that he takes a similarly tough line on the greens. The Trots in green clothing are as open to debate as Osama bin Laden, brooking no opposition in their desire to bring about global meltdown.

Allez Air France. Down with the Greens.

Let me know what you are doing to fight "environmentalism". Good luck to you and your fine company.

Yours sincerely

Peter Shullot